DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 22 April 2005 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 56, and 74-81 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 74, the subject matter is unclear since the method of using a pre-sequence to make peptides of interest, has in a later step iii. that the pre-sequence itself must first be "form[ed]" by coupling. The pre-sequence must be an existing peptide of at least 3 (up to 9) amino acids. In this sense the claims are no longer drawn to a product (preexisting pre-sequence) used for making peptides of interest. Rather the claims read upon any general method of stepwise coupling of amino acids to produce any peptide of interest; wherein the "pre-sequence" is merely part of the peptide of interest produced by stepwise coupling (see i.e. claim 78).

Application/Control Number: 09/551,336

Art Unit: 1654

Also in claim 74, the claim recites the limitations "i. coupling 'an N- α -protected C-terminal amino acid"; "ii. coupling 'one or more amino acids selected from step (a)"; and "iii. ... subsequently N- α -de-protected". There is insufficient antecedent basis for these limitations in the claim. It is suggested that the phrase "including the C-terminal and N-terminal amino acids being N- α -protected" be inserted in step a., line 2, after the term "synthesis". And that later reference to coupling such, is to i.e. "the N- α -C-terminal amino acid in the presequence of step a." and the like wherever else appropriate.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 56, and 74-81 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lazarus et al. (US 6,113,896).

Lazarus et al. is a general reference teaching the well-known production of peptides by step-wise coupling (col. 15, lines 10-18), including optionally using a pre-sequence for the production/retention therein (col. 12, lines 41-47).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the known methods of producing peptides by step-wise coupling, including optionally using a pre-sequence for the production/retention therein, to arrive at presently claimed peptides, in the methods of Lazarus et al., since Lazarus et al. teach the advantageous use of producing peptides by step-wise coupling, including optionally using a pre-sequence for the production/retention therein. The use of various L or D amino acids corresponding to inherent propensity factors is merely judicious selection by one of ordinary skill in the art in view of teachings such as Lazarus et al.

From the teachings of the reference, it is apparent that one of ordinary skill in the art would have had a reasonable expectation of success in producing the claimed invention.

Therefore, the invention as a whole was prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, as evidenced by the reference, especially in the absence of evidence to the contrary.
